PROVEN TECHNIQUES TO LEARN NEW WORDS IN ANY LANGUAGE

Bazarov Ihtiyor Rahmatullayevich
Deputy Dean, English Language Faculty 2
Uzbekistan State World Languages University
Kenesova Jazira Bauirjan qizi
Sophomore Student of State World Languages
University of Uzbekistan

Annotation: In the following article there are several methods that help you easily learn new words in any language.

Key words: method, journal, podcasts, books, environment, America, subtitles, language, England, story.

Despite good grammar base it can be quite sophisticated to understand your target language as long as you are not familiar with words. You do not have to spend time on different websites in search of methods that suits you. The main reason is that this article is going to provide with proven techniques to get you learn new words with ease and without loosing your time.

If your target language is English, use it as much as you can, whatever you do wherever you are. Create a learning environment by doing, switching and even thinking in English. By doing this, your brain gets accustomed to English environment making your learning much easier and funnier. It would be more effective if you travel to England or study in America which facilitates your learning with real practice. However, do not get disappointed as you may still create that English atmosphere listening to podcasts, watching films, speaking with your friends or writing a journal only in English. As a result, your brain gets tricked thinking that you are already living among native speakers. Therefore, immerse yourself in environment of your target language to learn much faster and more effective.

By putting new words into context you may easily remember and most importantly you will know how to use them. But if you learn them in lists you might make many mistakes plus creating sentences with incorrect words. Another technique is to make your own story with the help of newly learned words to make them stay in your mind for a long period of time. By this, you do not have to memorize all words but just remember the story created by yourself.

It is considered that learning new words through real-life situations can boost your lexicon. This can be achieved with the help of movies, films, podcasts or books in an original language. If you're a beginner you may start watching it with subtitles and at the same time writing unknown words for further study. Once your ears get used to your target language, you do not want to look at subtitles as you will automatically understand natives without any effort.

There is no need to use methods that work for all but not you. Try to use the most common techniques listed in an article and find out which one fits you well.

REFERENCE:

1. https://www.britishcouncil.org/voices-magazine/ten-ways-learn-new-words-language-learner

2. https://idc.edu/12-tried-true-ways-learn-foreign-language-vocabulary/

3. https://www.fluentu.com/blog/learning-vocabulary-in-another-language/

4. https://www.fluentu.com/blog/learning-foreign-language-vocabulary/

5. https://www.nytimes.com/2021/08/23/learning/14-ways-to-learn-vocabulary-and-explore-language-with-the-new-york-times.html

6. https://www.ef.edu/blog/language/how-to-memorize-new-vocabulary-faster/