Annotation: The article explores the opportunities given to young people in our country, the foundation of educated youth - the future. It is known that more than 60 percent of the population of our country are young people. The issue of raising young girls, who are the future of our country, as mature, educated, potential persons, perfect human beings has always been the most important task. Uzbekistan a true country of youth. Dreams of young men and women growing up in this country. Also they have many goals.

Key word: spirituality, youth, innovation, educational efficiency, education and training

In the life of any country, young people are the backbone of society's present and future. Therefore, attention to youth has risen to the level of public policy in many countries. It is in the hands of the youth that the country's development, rise, and not falling into decline, making it hegemonic in every field among the world countries. These heights are achieved by paying attention to the education of young people. "Another important issue that always worries us is related to the manners and behavior of our young people, in a word, their worldview. Today, times are changing rapidly. Who will feel these changes the most? Of course, young people. May the youth adapt to the demands of their times. But at the same time, he should not forget his identity. Let the call that we are the descendants of great people always resonate in their hearts and encourage them to stay true to themselves. How can we achieve this? "Education is education and only education," says Sh. Mirziyoev.

Today, elements of decadence can be seen in the education of a category of our youth. As an example, if you see the behavior of most of our youth today, how they treat the teacher during class, talk with their friends, use social networks, watch various pornographic pictures and videos, you will think that the future is in the hands of these young people. Now there are more and more young people who do not know how to respect their parents or elders. We hear, see and silently observe that parents, family members, friends, older people, and even children who are younger than themselves are abusing them on social media, ignoring the word "respect". How did the youth get to this point? Where the mistake was made. We can say that modern parents, who are role models for our youth, are the biggest culprits in the breakdown of education and lack of spirituality. Because at present, many parents can't spend too much time with their children for the purpose of financial support. Proper material supply is necessary because we live in the conditions of current market relations, but it creates one-sidedness in the emerging worldview. On the contrary, over-satisfaction of young people's needs has a negative impact on their upbringing. Diseases are on the rise as measures to improve the health of young people increase, theft, corruption, bribery, corruption and crime increase as economics is taught, as education opportunities increase, illiteracy and truancy increase, as spirituality is widely promoted, lack of spirituality and immorality increases, as patriotism and nationalism are encouraged as retreat from these qualities, pride, and nobility are promoted, arrogance and lack of nobility are gaining ground. If we look at history, the poverty between 10-15 years ago and today's youth is quite large. We can say that in the majority of our youth today, respect for parents, honoring teachers, receiving enlightenment from their words, sincere relationship with friends, friendly competition, evaluation according to the level of knowledge have remained in the history of 10-15 years that we remember. And some of our youth today are assessing each other financially, which is a very sad situation. Many of our modern parents stop worrying about their children and provide them with the latest mobile communication devices. Therefore, some of the parents are based on the goals of not being less than others, while others say that you should get the best you can. Those who are worried will be given a simple phone. But are their children using their parents' phones correctly? No, on the contrary, many of our young people spend their free time watching photos, videos and movies on social networks that are harmful to moral education. Giving school-age children more money than they need increases their desire for virtual (external world) games. That is, they spend a lot of their free time playing computer games, and we all know what kind of games they play. Everyone knows that the games in the virtual world have a negative effect on the minds of our youth, but there is no way to do it. The barbarity, obscenity, invitations to various movements and hakoos in the games are endless. What about the increasing number of young people who have adapted to such a life, especially those who put various obscene words and pictures on their clothes and advertise on a public level?! Who is to blame for this, only the parents?! No, on the contrary, we are all equally guilty here. One of the biggest mistakes parents make is that they think their child will be happy if they are well provided for and don't need anything.

There are some parents who don't even care what class their child is in or who the teacher is. They also see their children's diaries once a week to sign them. For them, it is enough if their child's needs are met. They think that their mind is enough for the rest. This is probably the reason why we are faced with many young people today, whose mind and worldview remain in the fifth grade, even when they are students. In the past, there were discussions about children's education at parent meetings in schools, but at the current "modern" parent meeting, class funds, fundraising for various holidays, and so on are discussed.

We need to find answers to our questions about how to save our youth from the decline of education, only then we will achieve results. First of all, our parents should stop taking a superficial view of their children's upbringing. In any case, they should monitor their children, give them time, try to correct the child's education with them instead of following the teacher when the teachers say that your children's education is messed up, know who their children are friends with, think about what they are busy with during the day, how active they are during the lesson it is necessary to force them to learn about their past, which subjects they master well and which subjects they struggle with, their interests, future dreams, etc. Making it a culture, tradition, and way of life for parents to have a separate conversation with their children when they feel that negative problems have started to appear in their upbringing, to try to explain with the help of examples about the wrongness of what they are doing, to establish mutual relations with their teachers, and to reprimand them when the time comes. First of all, it is necessary to make it a habit of parents to talk with teachers about their child's interests, take into account their desire for science or professions that attract their children, help them occupy their free time effectively with various additional activities, and encourage them when they achieve certain achievements. It is necessary to adopt a document confirming the possibility of providing them with simple means of mobile communication, which are sufficient only for talking. In the field of education, our pedagogues should pay special attention to the education of our youth, because there is no way to get education where there is no education. It was not for nothing that our thinkers said: "Education begins with education." First of all, if it becomes law today that our pedagogues monitor the children as they grow up, conduct more conversation processes with parents, the future would learn to this culture. As today, teachers should deal with the child individually without disrespecting his classmates when a child makes a mistake or something else, when he notices a change in the child's upbringing, without discussing it in front of his friends, and for both sides of the child's progress by notifying his parents and establishing contact with the family. should develop convenient ways. If this doesn't work, it's time to apply the principles of effective measures such as legal action. In our opinion, when there is communication between parents, teachers and young people, education does not deteriorate. Therefore, we think that it is necessary to always establish a friendly relationship with young people, explain to the family how important their future is for us, for our country.

Therefore, we think that it is necessary to always establish a friendly relationship with young people, explain to the family how important their future is for us, for our country. Only then, our young generations will fearlessly take steps towards their interests, work tirelessly to realize their goals, it is appropriate to give them understanding about religious education in addition to secular education, that is, how pure the Islamic religion is based on beliefs. The reason is that these measures are effective in preventing them from being deceived by various evils such as religious extremism, terrorism, drug addiction, human trafficking, illegal migration, and "mass culture".
